A Postcard

Hi Sally,

Greetings from Hong Kong!

I'm celebrating Christmas in Hong Kong with my friend, Patrick. This is the first time that I do not celebrate Christmas in the UK. People here have parties, exchange presents and see Christmas lights at Christmas. I go to Tsim Sha Tsui to see Christmas lights with Patrick's family. I'm having a party at Patrick's home. We eat gingerbread men and a turkey. The turkey is tasty.

How do you celebrate Christmas this year?

See you soon!

Love,
Malee

An Unlucky Sports Day

It was Sports Day yesterday morning. Eric and his friend, Gary, were at the sports ground. They joined the 100m race. Eric was faster than Gary.

Eric came in the second place and he got a silver medal. Gary came in the third place and he got a bronze medal. They felt delighted. After the event, Eric went to the tuck shop to buy ice lollies. He bought two ice lollies, one was chocolate-flavoured and the other one was mango-flavoured.

After a while, Eric and Gary took part in the 400m hurdles. Eric was faster than Gary at the beginning. Suddenly, Eric felt unwell in the middle of the race because he ate too many ice lollies.

Eric stopped running. A teacher took him to the first-aid room. He could not finish the race. Eric felt unhappy. ‘Don’t be sad! Cheer up!’ Gary comforted him. ‘We can join the race next year!’

Chinese Culture Day

Dear Miss Wong,

We have chosen the activities for Chinese Culture Day. Our group is going to make Chinese dumpling and Chinese lanterns. We are going to write Chinese couplets too. Let me tell you the progress of the tasks.

For making Chinese dumplings, we have already watched some videos on YouTube about making dumplings. However, we have not bought the ingredients yet. Sam is going to buy them in the morning on Chinese Culture Day.

For making Chinese lanterns, Sam has already found some videos, but he has not learned how to make the lanterns yet. Sally and Sue have not bought coloured paper and strings yet. They are going to buy the materials this week.

For writing Chinese couplets, Tom has already borrowed some books and has already selected some phrases to write. I have not bought the ink, ink stone, paper and writing brushes yet.

Don't worry. Everything will be ready on Chinese Culture Day.

Best regards,
Ricky

People I Admire

I admire my teacher, Miss Choy. She was born in Hong Kong. She is an intelligent teacher. She likes her students therefore she loves her job very much.

She is forgiving and encouraging, sometimes she's kind of scary when she is mad. She told us we could do a lot of things if we try harder.

Miss Choy is the person I admire. She teaches us a lot of things such as English, being honest, listening to the parents always, studying notes and getting good grades etc. She expects her students to become good kids. This is her ultimate goal.

Learning a New Culture

Jeff is from Canada. He came to Hong Kong to visit Ken and his parents last month.

One day, Ken and his parents took Jeff to Happy Chinese Restaurant. While Ken's mum was pouring tea into Ken's dad's tea cup, he was tapping the table twice. Jeff was curious so he asked, 'Uncle, why did you tap the table?' Ken's dad smiled and replied, 'Tapping the table means saying thank you. It looks like I am bowing to someone.' 'Oh! I see,' said Jeff. He also tapped the table twice when Ken's dad poured tea into his tea cup.

When the waiter put dim sum on the table, everyone was using chopsticks. Jeff held the chopsticks and asked, 'Sorry, Ken. May you teach me how to use these?' Ken said, 'They are called chopsticks. Let me teach you how to use them.' Ken taught Jeff how to use chopsticks patiently. He told Jeff to get a shrimp dumpling. Jeff grabbed it slowly, but it dropped into his tea cup accidentally. The water spilt everywhere on the table. Jeff felt embarrassed so he said, 'I'm so sorry.'

Ken and his family used another method to teach Jeff. After some practice, he knew how to use chopsticks. He said, 'Let me grab you the dim sum one by one. I like using chopsticks to eat Chinese food. What an interesting culture!' Everyone laughed.

All About Me

My name is Jacky. I'm twelve years old. I study at S.K.H. Kei Lok Primary School. I like General Studies because it teaches me a lot of knowledge about Science and History which helps to expand my horizons.

My hobbies are playing computer games, playing football and doing origami. I like doing origami most because it helps me to think, solve problems and improve my spatial visualization skills. I do origami three times a week.

I am a member of the football club. I have been a member of the football club for three years. I meet my coach once every week. I have learnt how to cooperate with my teammates so that we can win in competitions. Unfortunately, competitions are cancelled because of Covid-19. We have had no chance to practise football and join any competitions this year.

I am good at running. I hope I will join the school track and field team in the future. I believe that I can work with my teammates and gain a prize one day.

What do you like doing in your spare time?

An Adventure

A long time ago a girl named Judy lived in a small village. One day, she found an egg. The egg suddenly cracked and a dragon was born. The dragon grew up and became as tall as a mountain.

One day, a wizard appeared. He told Judy that a king was trapped in a tower because of a cunning witch. He said, 'Go and save him!'. Judy and the dragon then planned to help the king.

On the journey, they met a monster. It was the witch's pet that helped to stop them from saving the king. The dragon roared as angrily as it could. 'Stop trapping him'

I am a friendly dolphin. I am writing because I want people to save me and my family. Because of the problems of reclamation, pollution and overfishing in Hong Kong, I hope you can help us.

The first problem we are facing is reclamation. You, human beings, keep turning sea in to land. Don't you know that there will be a loss of habitat for many of us? Some industrial waste will get into the sea too. Unless people set a law to ban all kinds of reclamation activities in our habitat, we will die soon.

The second problem which greatly affects us is water pollution. You always dump toxic waste and pour chemicals into the sea. We may get sick or these acts may cause sea animals to die. To save our lives, if you dump toxic waste into the sea, you should have a penalty.

The third problem is overfishing. It is baffling why people fish in areas where we live. There will be fewer fish for us to eat. As a result, we will be extinct. In order to solve the problem, you should not fish during the fishing moratorium. Fishnets should not be used because a lot of sea animals will be caught and they will die out soon.

Take action now! I hope you will fix these problems as soon as possible and treasure all the marine life in the long run. Save us please!

A Special Day

‘BANG!’ I shut the door quickly because I left home at 8 o’ clock. I quickly went to school because I was going to be late. I felt worried as I didn’t want to be scolded by my class teacher. I left in a hurry as fast as lightning.

On the road, I saw a lot of cars there and I heard some cars beeping. I thought there must a car accident! Therefore, I decided to run to school instead of taking a bus. I was rushing to school without looking at the pedestrian lights while a car was coming towards me. I was scared because I didn’t want to die! The driver saw me and put on his brakes in time. I said sorry and thank you to the driver because I made him nervous and he saved me.

After that, I continued walking on the road because I was really in a hurry. Then, I saw a police car. I was so shocked that I could hardly move. I stood in the middle of the road. I was afraid that the police would catch me because I was walking on the road without following the traffic rules.

The policeman looked angry and said, ‘Don’t do that again! Jaywalking is dangerous!’ Finally, the police left and I ran to school at once but I was still late. I was very regretful that I did not leave home earlier. I learnt to manage my time well. I should wake up early so that I don’t need to rush to school anymore!
